

Culinary Historians of Ontario in partnership with Campbell House Museum

TALKING FOOD

Why Symposia Are Important for Food Culture

A lecture by gastronome and culinary activist Anita Stewart

Monday, 7 June, 7:00 pm

Campbell House Museum, 160 Queen Street West, Toronto
at Osgoode Subway Station 416 597-0227, campbellhouse@bellnet.ca
www.campbellhousemuseum.ca

Gastronome and culinary activist Anita Stewart will present CHO's annual spring lecture. Anita believes that "[c]ommunication is central to the creation of a dynamic food culture." Anita will share her insights into the role of food symposia in Canada and around the world. She wrote Anita Stewart's Canada – The Food, the Recipes, the Stories (Cuisine Canada Gold Award for Food Culture, 2009) expressly to celebrate Canada's foodscape and culinary history.

$15 members and non-members. Includes refreshments. Pre-registration recommended.

Culinary Historians of Ontario

